THURSDAY MORNING, DECEMBER 9, 1858.

FRUIT IN JAPAN. U. S. CONSULATE GENERAL AT SIMODA, 1 July 9, 1858.

Sir: The statements in the "World in Ministore," concerning the Japan radish, are much exaggerated. It is true that radishes are grown in every part of Japan, but nowhere are they a principal article of tood -They are merely an adjunct to the rice, wheat and barley, which are the great staples of the country.

I ordered the best specimens of the long radish to be brought to me when I first visited Yeddo. The longest were les- than thirty inches in length, and about one inch in diameter. This radish, when dried, loses more than three-fourths of its bulk and looks very like a whip thoog. With the long property to be removed until the above terms radish, specimens of another kind were brought to me. These were shaped like our parsnip, the largest measuring eighteen inches long and fifteen inches in circumference | contains about ONE HUNDRED AMD SEVENand weighed four pounds five ounces avor- TEEN ACRES OF PRIME LAND, well imdupois. All the radishes of Japan, when proved, plenty of water, abundance of wood, used as a salad, are inferior to the garden fine young orchard of choice fruit trees, a first radish of the Wes.t. When boiled they are quite insipid, having acthing of the flavor of the white turnip or ruta baga.

I shall embrace the first opportunity of varieties, but have great doubt about their reaching you in good condition as I cannot get the metal cases in which to seal them bermetically; nor can Wardian cases be procured here, as there is not a pane of glass in the whole empire.

Very little attention is paid to the cultivation of fruit in this country. Cherry and plum trees produce magnificent blossoms, but they bear very little fruit, and that little is worthless. The peaches are far interior to from day to day, until all is sold. those of China; and the same remark will apply to the apricot.

I have seen only one variety of pear .--They are in shape and color, quite like a Russet apple; but they are unfit to eat raw. and, when cocked, are quite maipid. The best grapes of Japan resemble the Catawba in appearance but are interior to that variety.

The only truit that I have seen in Japan One description has a skin as thin as tissue paper, and the pulp resembles in flavor the Egyptian fig. Another variety has a thick rind and a firmer pulp than the sort first named, while the taste strongly reminds me of the flavor of the delicious mangoes of Sam and B mbay. The tree is highly ornamental, and of rapid growth. It would no doubt succeed in any part of the United States south of 37 degrees of latitude. Unlike the persimmon of the United States, there is very little as ringency in the skin of the fruit, and frost, which matures the persimmon, greatly injures the kaki.

This fruit varies in size, but is always larger than its American relative, and some are seven inches in diameter. The fruit is in season nearly three months. The Japanese dry this fruit, which enables them to keep it for some four months. When dried, it resembles the dried Smyrna fig in taste.

I send you a few seeds of the kaki, under this cover, thinking that they may possibly germmate after they reach Washington, and knowing that they will only cause a trifling addition to the postage of my letter.

I am, respectfully, your obedient servant, TOWNSEND HARRIS, Consul General. To the Commissioner of the Patent Office.

THE EMPEROR AND EMPRESS OF THE FRENCH.

The Imperial family, with a court rendered more brilliant than usual by a number of seat;" and the Emperor is adding to its historic treasures by decrees and deliberations which will somewhat consecrate them. King Clovis had a rural retreat at Compiegae, and it was at the siege of this place that the Maid of Orleans was captured. Napoleon I, received his Austrian bride here, and Napoleon III. sent forth his doubts hence, concerning the propriety of his African policy. Among his guests are Lord and Lady Clarendon and Lord and Lady Palmerston. It is probable that the presence of such guests will revive the rumors current during the last visit of the latter nobleman, of a plot for the re-establishment of the late English Ministry .-Meanwhile recreation has much to do with the swift hours at Compiegne. The Empress's Saint's day was distinguished by proper splender and felicitation. Their Majesties take part in the bunt, ride up with the hounds, are in at the death, and finally preside at the curee, or giving to the dogs their due share of the stag. The Parisians enjoy all these joyous doings, with their quotdian breakfast, and a pleasant sense of congratulation accompanies the the recital. They read too with especial pleasure the official news this morning: "The Emperor has derived great benefit from his sejourn at Compiegne. His Majesty, in fact, was never in better
